I don't know about you, I am sick of rain. But, we shouldn't complain, I guess, because we could be going through Hurricanes and Tornados—so there is that. Eventually we will be able to get into our gardens and work, and if the grass is long enough, we can sell it as hay.

I heard Mia Hamm—USA Soccer Woman's Team Gold Winner—speak at the North Carolina commencement. Quite the speech and as she said, way out of her comfort zone. Something she said struck me as really quite profound.

"You need people with different skills, different strengths, different approaches to solving problems. You need diversity."

That is so true. And something I feel we really strive to work on at St. Paul's. So many different points of view, some I agree with, some I don't. But I don't cherish the one with a different view than the one with the view more in alignment with me. Because one thing I have learned over my 60+ years—if we ALL thought alike, life would be so blasted boring. It never hurts to listen to another's point of view, and nothing wrong with saying to them, "I'm not sure I understand, but it is your point of view."

Today, so many people just discount what another says. And in discounting, they may also attach one of the more popular dissing names or statements along with it. Sad, isn't it? That we have reached that point in our lives, that being hurtful to someone in the name of your point of view is okay. I don't understand it.

The exciting part of our church life is coming up!! First, we have Oz Fest—which is always a wonderful time where we work together, setting up, cooking, selling and taking down all that being part of the day entails. I appreciate every single one of you. Then it is Pentecost!! Don't forget to wear Red to help celebrate the birthday of the Christian Church!! Traditionally, for those who may not know, Pentecost is a significant feast in the Episcopal Church, marking the descent of the Holy Spirit upon the apostles and the birth of the Church, celebrated fifty days after Easter. Can you believe? It's been fifty days since Easter—it seems like it was only yesterday.

Of course, the second Saturday of the month is upon us, so it will be the Clothing Exchange for Babies and Kids.

June is also Fathers Day and Graduation Appreciation Day. We will have a ymmy Strawberry Cake celebrating our Dads. As for the graduates, I have accrued quite a list. Which I will share on another space in the Newsletter.

Keep your head above the water and know you are blessed. Robin W.
